News Leaks THIEU OFFERS TO QUIT

(c) Washington Star Washington — The State Department confirmed Thursday that the Justice Department has been investigating State Department officials because of alleged leaks of "sensitive information" to newsmen.

It was the first time department observers could recall such investigation since the Eisenhower administration of the 1950s and the furor of so-called "security risks" prompted by the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Robert J. McCloskey declined to confirm or deny reports that FBI agents have been requiring State Department officials to submit to lie detector tests in an attempt to uncover officials who may have cooperated with journalists in disclosing information.

McCloskey refused to discuss what subjects were involved in the investigation, how widespread it is or whether it has been con-

More Than A Dozen

Unofficial sources disclosed that the investigation involved more than a dozen ranking State Department officials who have been subjected to the use or the threat of the use of lie detectors.

The investigation was reportedly prompted by stories disclosing details of the strategic arms limitation negotiations as well as the publication of the Pentagon Papers, a classified Defense Department study of the origins of the Vietnam war, which Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, an employe of the Rand Corp., has said he gave to several newspapers.

McCloskey replied "no comment" when asked if his department was concerned about the investigative techniques brought into the State Department by other departments. He repeatedly declined to discuss details of the Justice Department investigation.

When a reporter asked him to confirm that it involved employes of the Intelligence and Research Division, McCloskey replied that he would answer no further questions on the subject and left the State Department briefing

McCloskey attempted to play down the significance if not the extent of the investiga-

When asked whether a reprimand or notation inserted in a foreign officer's personnel record was a disciplinary action, he responded that such a reprimand would not necessarily come under the classification of disciplinary action.

'A Deep Concern'

"It needs to be emphasized," McCloskey said, "that the department has a deep concern, and I would expect the public in general would understand, when information that could be or is prejudicial" to the national interest, is released to the press "and more so when unauthorized persons are involved."

McCloskey said no new written instructions have been circulated to department officials concerning their dealings with newsmen, but he declined to specify what verbal instructions or other information has been circulated to officials concerning their practice in talking

Reporters regularly covering the department confirmed that in recent weeks virtually no information or contact with officials has been available on a series of subjects presently in the center of foreign policy developments.

McCloskey denied that the policy could be marked from the time shortly after the publication of the Pentagon Papers.

But unofficial sources within the department confirmed, however, that it was extraordinary for the Justice Department to take over an investigative function normally handled by the State Department's own security organization.

If Voters Show

Van Thieu, acknowledging that he will be the only candidate, promised his people Thursday night that he will step down if next month's election fails to give a vote of confidence to him and his policies.

His speech on television did not specify what percentage of the vote would give him "a vote of confidence," or how that percentage would be determined. Such a percentage could be based on the total number of eligible voters, or on the number of ballots cast.

A voter could vote against Thieu by dropping an empty envelope in the ballot box, or he could abstain.

Interpretation

Political analysts interpreted Thieu's offer to step down as an offer to resign between the Oct. 3 balloting and the end of his current term Oct. 31. In that case, the chairman of the senate would take over as acting president and organize new elections within 90 days.

"I see that the coming election will be a referendum," Thieu said. "If the turnout next month confirms my confidence, I shall remain in the presidency. Otherwise I will not accept another four-year term." Thieu denied again the rigging charges of his former opponents, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and retired Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, saying "to "Big" Minh, saying withdraw or to run is the freedom of each ticket. 'I Am Responsible'

"But I am responsible to the whole country. To resign would he the act of an irresponsible man, a deserter trying to avoid his responsibilities. "Such an act could severely damage the country, leaving the legal and constitutional regime vulnerable to the Communists.

"The Oct. 3 election is determined by the constitution

there is only one ticket. There is no legal basis for not organizing the $e\bar{l}ections.$ "

Thieu said he had hoped for competition, "but there is nothing I can do about it. I must carry out the constitution and legal procedures." 'Work For Peace'

In closing, the president asserted: "The opposition can express their dissent in a peaceful manner. All I did before was to work for peace. I shall continue to work for peace."

At the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he would not comment on Thieu's television speech but quickly added that the South Vietnamese president's remarks suggest "he is obviously trying to give an element of popular choice to the Oct. 3 elections."

While Thieu was speaking, Ky was reported in conference with about 50 national assemblymen and representatives of various political groups, all of them Ky supporters. The closed-door session was held in Ky's villa at Tan on Nhut Air Base. 'Discussion'

"It was chiefly to discuss the coming election and the present situation in the country," said Lt. Col. Vu Duc Vinh, Ky's spokesman. He added that Ky feels "the people, the press and public opinion will not allow a one-man race."

Thieu's plan for holding the election, then stepping down if he does not get a vote of confidence, appears in part a compromise designed to deal with U.S. pressure for a contested election and Ky's demand that he and Thieu resign and call for new elections.

By adding the step-down provision, Thieu has left an escape without yielding directly to the demands of either Ky or the

IRA Attacks A Crowded Area In Daylight

(c) New York Times News Service

Belfast, Northern Ireland - In the first Irish Republican Army attack on a crowded area in daylight, six bomb explosions in downtown Belfast injured 39 persons and wrecked the headquarters of the Unionist Party, the party that rules Northern Ireland. Officials feared that the bombings could mark the beginning of a new IRA strategy directed against civilians.

U.S. Opposes Cahill's Entry

New York - Contending that his visa had been revoked while he was flying here from Ireland, the U.S. government argued before a hearing officer that Joe Cahill should not be allowed to remain in this country. Cahill, the leader of the militant "provisional" wing of the IRA, was ordered held in a guarded dormitory until the hearing resumes next Tuesday.

British Act To Guard Money

London - In a further British move to keep the pound sterling from floating too high against the dollar, British officials lowered the maximum interest rate in their country from 6% to 5%. The lower rate, it is hoped, will ward off further inflows of speculative dollars and slow the depreciation of the dollar. (More

Signing Of Pact Delayed

Berlin - The formal signing of the Big Four agreement on Berlin was delayed at least 24 hours by difficulties in matching the English-German and Russian-German versions of the treaty's text.

Leaders 'Less Than Unanimous'

Washington - South Vietnam's military leaders are "less than unanimous" in supporting President Nguyen Van Thieu's decision to go ahead with the presidential election even though he has no opponent, the nation's intelligence services told President Nixon. Although most generals pledged their support at a secret meeting with Thieu last week, the services said, some were "noncommittal."

Wholesale Prices Rise

Washington - The Labor Department reported a substantial rise in wholesale prices last month. (More on Page 2.)

N. Vietnam Floods

New York - New York State Supreme Court Justice Joseph Patrick Pfingst was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges that he paid $50,000 in cash to Frederick R. Fellman, a former Republican leader in the Long Island town of Babylon, in return for the Republican nomination for the judgeship. Fellman is currently in jail, and Pfingst has been suspended from the bench in connection with other charges.

Most Nations Float

Most countries chose to float their currencies and let them find their own value in relatively free market conditions rather than absorb additional unwanted dollars. Any continuing dollar outflow is thus reflected primarily in higher exchange off further inflows of speculative rates for foreign currencies dollars and even encourage rather than in higher foreign exchange reserves.

However, countries have stepped in with various exchange controls and regulations - such as Britain's interest rate cut Thursday - in an effort to limit their currencies appreciation and loss of competitive position.

The system of floating rates has thus produced dollar franc and Italian lira to about 6% for the Japanese yen and just over 7% for the West German deutsch mark.

These politically controlled rates fall far short of the 12 to 15% dollar depreciation reportedly sought by the Nixon administration.

Most Nations Float

Most countries chose to float their currencies and let them find their own value in relatively free market conditions rather than absorb additional unwanted dollars. Any continuing dollar outflow is thus reflected primarily in higher exchange off further inflows of speculative rates for foreign currencies rather than in higher foreign exchange reserves.

However, countries have stepped in with various exchange controls and regulations - such as Britain's interest rate cut Thursday - in an effort to limit their currencies appreciation and loss of competitive position.

The system of floating rates has thus produced dollar depreciation rates ranging from just over 1.5% for the Swiss 6% for the Japanese yen and The huge reported flows out of just over 7% for the West German deutsch mark.

Everybody, including the newspapers, came in for his share of criticism at the last meeting of the Lancaster County Board of Commissioners. However, it was still an encouraging meeting

The conflict came between the board and the elected department heads of county government. This is not surprising, as elected county officials have always run little kingdoms of their own and have never demonstrated any desire to relinquish any of their power or authority.

Such is a natural human tendency, we suppose, but we wonder if it is getting for people who pay the tax bill the most for their money. The idea here is not to accuse county officials of anything, but to encouage them to look with dispassion at existing procedures, especially in purchasing.

The elected officials asked for proof that competitive bidding would be any better for the county than negotiated purchases. When you get right down to it, the proof would be mighty hard to come by.

You can't buy something two ways. If you buy it on bids, you can only try to figure out what it would have cost you by negotiation but there has to be some judgment in that. The city, for instance, cannot state as an absolute fact that it has saved anything on its own centralized purchasing by competitive bids.

But it has a pretty good idea that it is saving thousands of dollars a year. Elected county officials will say the same thing, that they are saving thousands of dollars a year by negotiating for the best buy they can find.

Some county officials point out that the best bid is not always the lowest bid. This is a tired argument that has been used against competitive bidding for an eternity and just doesn't hold any water.

Competitive bidding does not require that you take the low bid. All competitive bidding calls for the agency to take both the lowest and best bid combined Putting the two together, the accepted bid might even be the highest in terms of initial

When you put everything together on this matter, what facts that can be assembled invariably give overwhelming support to competitive bidding for public agencies, even though no system is ever going to be perfect.

Secondly, there are other common-sense reasons for such bidding procedures. On the face of it, it is far more reasonable to expect a better price with competitive bidding. Also, such bidding is a powerful deterrent to improper practices.

There is no county official anywhere being accused of any wrong-doing in the purchase of county equipment. The fact remains, however, that special interests and favoritism can prevail far more easily in negotiated than competitive buying.

This is the theory, not the alleged practice in county government today. The theory affords protection to both taxpayers and elected officials and should be welcome on that score by those officials.

Besides the matter of purchasing, elected county officials demonstrated in that matter little spirit of understanding or cooperation with the county board.

Do we have at the county level one governmental subdivision or a host of little independent governments? We thought we had one but elected county department heads seem to have opinion that their autonomy take precedence over any and all things, including the welfare of the electorate.

The Place Of Voting

If Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and the Nixon administration can be accused of playing politics with newly enfranchised voters regarding the question of where they cast their ballots, so can the Democratic National Committee. Both the administration and the Democrats have been issuing self-serving statements on the issue.

Mitchell said in a speech Wednesday that allowing 18, 19 and 20-year-old students to vote in the communities where they attend college would be unfair to other voters, particularly servicemen. "There are many persons who must be away from home at election time," Mitchell said, adding that special legislation to allow college students to vote away from their permanent residences - while others in similar situations would have to cast absentee ballots - would be discriminatory, "including the 800,000servicemen who are also in this new age group and also located away from home."

The Democratic National Committee saw this as another attempt by the administration to keep the strength of the newly enfranchised

Mitchell's "curbstone legal opinion," the Democrats said, "clearly recognizes that the Nixon administration has little appeal to the aspirations of millions of potential young voters of the United States. More reprehensible, he is attempting to drag the law of the land into the political arena.

The Democrats, of course, have reasons for wanting the concentration of largely liberal student voters in one area and those reasons are no less political.

Stripped of whatever partisan camouflage that may be attributed to them, Mitchell's statements still reflect a more reasoned approach to the problem.

The issue largely rests on the sticky problem of residency, which has never been resolved to the satisfaction of either the student or the community. Aside from the question of familiarity with local issues - and there are issues on the ballot beyond who will be president — there are the issues of taxation and tuition rates to contend with. We think that, all things considered, it is better for a person to vote his place of permanent residence.

Foreign Policy Pivots

In an interview with New York Times reporter James Reston, the first press interview he has granted since the announcement of new U.S. economic policies, Premitr Sato of Japan said that despite Washington's recent moves toward China and its action in defense of the dollar, both of which caused serious political repercussions in Japan, the U.S. still remains the "pivot" of Japanese foreign

". . . Japan and the United States are in the same ship together. If the United States is shipwrecked, so is Japan," Sato told Reston. And as far as his support of the American government is concerned, so might be Sato, who is as valuable an individual ally as President Nixon has abroad.

The Japanese premier has taken the long view toward rifts in relations with America that have otherwise resulted in deep if not enduring hostilities with powerful elements of Japanese life. But his future, as that of President Nixon's, is not a certainty.

For his part, Sato sees nothing profoundly dangerous about the course on which the U.S. is now charted in economic and foreign affairs. But he hopes that Nixon's economic actions will be temporary and that the U.S., once out of Vietnam, will not be tempted to withdraw altogither from the world

If reassurance is needed, although Sato seems reassured, President Nixon has already planned to meet with Japanese Emperor Hirohito in Alaska this month, and in his informal manner of inviting invitations, just recently said he would like to visit Japan, once the China journty is completed.

These gestures can only be seen as the President's acknowledgement that Japan is the pivot of American foreign policy in WASHINGTON - As the public schools open for the fall term, busing continues to be both a scare word and a straw man for those who are opposed to or dubious about desegregation. Busing also continues to be the only real hope for achieving substantial desegregation in the North and the larger cities of the South, and it is therefore potentially one of the most important instruments for improving American education.

There are limited grounds for optimism. In the South, busing plans in numerous cities will bring to less than 8 per cent of their total the number of black pupils who will be in all-black schools. Even where George Wallace has been breathing fire and nonsense, the old spirit of massive resistance is reported

Even in the North, under various forms of legal and political pressure, a nascent attack on so-called de facto segregation can at last be discerned. In Boston, for example, the school board has yielded to the state's threat to withhold $21 million in education funds and has pledged a policy that will eliminate black-

Court's mandate in the Charlotte, N.C, and other school cases may have been misunderstood or misapplied. Baldwin Park's average teacher salary was $9,744, among the state's lowest, and class size was among the highest. Property owners in Baldwin Park paid $5.48 per $100 assessed valuation; Beverly Hills residents paid $2.38. Homes in both districts are assessed at 25% of market value. Thus, the AP noted, the owner of a $100,000 house in Beverly Hills would have paid $595 in taxes, while a Baldwin Park owner of a $20,000 home would have paid $274.

"Thus, affluent districts can have their cake and eat it, too: they can provide high quality education for their children whil paying lower taxes," the court said. And it noted that "the commercial and industrial property which augments a district's tax base is distributed unevenly throughout the state," making the child's "educational opportunity depend on where he happens to live."

That, said the court, violates the 14th Amendment's "equal protection" clause. The court based its decision

He expects Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me., the front-runner, to win the first two primaries in New Hampshire and Florida. But McGovern believes he will make a good showing against Muskie in California, Massachusetts, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

McGovern's strategy will be to concentrate on becoming the leading challenger by the year's end. If he can crowd out the other rivals and establish himself as the No. 2 candidate, he would be abble to narrow the race to a Muskie vs. McGovern showdown.

This would put McGovern in a position to pick up the support of the other liberals in the race and to dramatize the difference between himself and

We charged that the juicy maintenance contract had been tentatively awarded, not to the lowest bidder, but to a subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph. The conglomerate, a benefactor of the center, already had the parking and food concessions. Stevens has now ordered all maintenance bids rejected.

"Responsible newspapermen have reasonable doubts about this, and I think it will always be tainted in the public's mind," Stevens said. "I am ordering all the bids rejected as of this moment and the records opened for inspection as soon as possible."

We also informed Stevens that the center's fabulous haute cuisine restaurant, Le Grande Scene, had not hired a single black as a waiter or busboy.

This is more important than it may seem, for black waiters have been discriminated against in most of Washington's expensive restaurants where the prices, and therefore the tips, are highest. Many had hoped the Kennedy Center would provide a new opportunity.

The Place Of Voting

If Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and the Nixon administration can be accused of playing politics with newly enfranchised voters regarding the question of where they cast their ballots, so can the Democratic National Committee. Both the administration and the Democrats have been issuing self-serving statements on the issue.

Mitchell said in a speech Wednesday that allowing 18, 19 and 20-year-old students to vote in the communities where they attend college would be unfair to other voters, particularly servicemen. "There are many persons who must be away from home at election time," Mitchell said, adding that special legislation to allow college students to vote away from their permanent residences while others in similar situations would have to cast absentee ballots - would be discriminatory, "including the 800,000 servicemen who are also in this new age group and also located away from home.'

The Democratic National Committee saw this as another attempt by the administration to keep the strength of the newly enfranchised diffused.

Mitchell's "curbstone legal opinion," the Democrats said, "clearly recognizes that the Nixon administration has little appeal to the aspirations of millions of potential young voters of the United States. More reprehensible, he is attempting to drag the law of the land into the political arena.

The Democrats, of course, have reasons for wanting the concentration of largely liberal student voters in one area and those reasons are no less political.

Stripped of whatever partisan camouflage that may be attributed to them, Mitchell's statements still reflect a more reasoned approach to the problem.

The issue largely rests on the sticky problem of residency, which has never been resolved to the satisfaction of either the student or the community. Aside from the question of familiarity with local issues - and there are issues on the ballot beyond who will be president - there are the issues of taxation and tuition rates to contend with. We think that, all things considered, it is better for a person to vote his place of permanent residence.

Foreign Policy Pivots

reporter James Reston, the first press interview he has granted since the announcement of new U.S. economic policies, Premitr Sato of Japan said that despite Washington's recent moves toward China and its action in defense of the dollar, both of which caused serious political repercussions in Japan, the U.S. still remains the "pivot" of Japanese foreign ". . . Japan and the United States are in the same ship together. If the United States is shipwrecked, so is Japan," Sato told Reston. And as far as his support of the American government is concerned, so might be Sato, who is as valuable an individual ally as President Nixon has abroad.

In an interview with New York Times of Japanese life. But his future, as that of President Nixon's, is not a certainty.

> For his part, Sato sees nothing profoundly dangerous about the course on which the U.S. is now charted in economic and foreign affairs. But he hopes that Nixon's economic actions will be temporary and that the U.S., once out of Vietnam, will not be tempted to withdraw altogtther from the world

If reassurance is needed, although Sato seems reassured, President Nixon has already planned to meet with Japanese Emperor Hirohito in Alaska this month, and in his informal manner of inviting invitations, just recently said he would like to visit Japan, once the China journty is completed.

These gestures can only be seen as the President's acknowledgement that Japan is the pivot of American foreign policy in

'Poor Have No Cake At All'

With that comment, California's Supreme Court threw that state's local property tax support of schools out the constitutional It'll be a while before other states have a chance to study the Wall decision closely, but on the fact of it the decision appears to call for "more than casual interest" elsewhere in the nation.

At the moment, of course, the ruling applies only to the state of California.

But that case or one very similar to it will undoubtedly land in the U.S. Supreme Court sometime in the future.

The New York Times reported that similar cases are pending in a number of other states already.

James Robertson, executive director of the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, a Washington, D.C. group, was quoted in the Times as saying the California decision "breathes life into a dozen or more school finance suits" in other states.

Robertson said cases similar to the California one are pending in Florida, Michigan, New Jersey, Texas and Wisconsin. Two cases are ready to be filed in New York and another in Georgia, he said.

And he said others are cose to being filed in Ohio and North

Calrolina, he said.

It's Robertson's claim that Hawaii is now the only state with a school financing system that does not violate the U.S. Constitution under the terms of the California decision.

In Hawaii, he said, all public education is financed directly through the state department of education.

The Associated Press reported that Hawaii and to some extent Utah were the only states that do not base school

公 公 公 What might happen in Nebraska if it were to face a similar test is still unknown. State Senator Jerome Warner of Waverly, however, believes Nebraska's system would stand a court test similar to the California one, but it's his guess it could do so only if it were updated to reflect current costs and funded to the level called for.

The law is currently funded only partially, with the state general fund contibuting $35 million. Full funding, a goal long supported by Warner, would cost some $89 million, according to latest estimates. Warner said the problem is not the property tax itself, but whether there is an equitable method of distributing state aid to local school districts. The Waverly senator said Nebraska's formula, cited nationally as an example of the "right method," was based on per-pupil expenditures and was aimed at specifically alleviating disparities among districts. The latter is exactly what the California court pinpointed when it said the richest school districts can "have their cake and eat it, too." The court singled out two school districts to illustrate what concluded amounted to inequitable disparities between what rich kids get from the public school system and what poor kids get.

Property owners in Baldwin Park paid $5.48 per $100 assessed valuation; Beverly Hills residents paid $2.38. Homes in both districts are assessed at 25% of market value. Thus, the AP noted, the owner of a $100,000 house in Beverly Hills would have paid $595 in taxes, while a Baldwin Park owner of a $20,000 home would have paid $274.

"Thus, affluent districts can have their cake and eat it, too: they can provide high quality education for their children whil paying lower taxes," the court said.

And it noted that "the commercial and industrial property which augments a district's tax base is distributed unevenly throughout the state," making the child's "educational opportunity depend on where he happens to live."

That, said the court, violates the 14th Amendment's "equal protection" clause.

The court based its decision on a series of U.S. Supreme Court decisions which it said "demonstrated a marked antipathy toward legislative classifications which discriminate on the basis of certain 'suspect' personal characteristics," including

What happens in other states next is unsure, but U. S. Education Commissioner Sidney Marlan told the New York Times that it "may mean a re-examination is now called for universally in the state formulas for distribution of tax resources for schools in the rather antiquated system known as equalization."

Unmasking Of Hidden Heart Defects

NEW YORK - "Frequently, tragedies is coronary artery consider it a rare breakthrough the first symptom of coronary heart disease is death itself

A spooky way of putting it. printed the above is, unfortunately, factual. One-third of fatal heart attacks are the result of so-called occult (or masked) heart defects that go undetected in electrocardiogram readings which explains the paradox every physician sometimes encounters: the loss of a patient from a coronary attack shortly after an apparently

"normal" ECG.

"In America alone, 200,000 people die each year just like that," says Dr. Joseph R. Levitt, snapping his fingers to signify suddenness. "Most of them could have been saved had their heart abnormalities been apparent in electrocardiogram tests. But their symptoms were hidden."

The omnicardiogram which emerges looks like two circles, with one inside and tangential I to the other. A line representing possible arterial damage is traced in relation to the circles; if it falls between them, the patient has no artery disease, but if it goes outside, the physician is advised to do a more complete diagnostic check with blood studies and cinearteriography.

The science of omnicardiography is new, only cardiologists in the New York-New Jersey area are aware of it. Many of them

"And they'll test us," Levitt grins. "Among the current ones, they'll hide a batch of ECGs that represent past cases which were read as 'normal,' but which later turned out to be the tracings of coronary artery diseased patients. When we catch them, some physicians still won't believe - and they'll re-submit them under different labels.'

Levitt claims that in carefully controlled clinical investigations of hundreds of "normal" electrocardiograms. his omnicardiograms have shown artery disease rates of 87 to 94 per cent, later confirmed either by cardiac cineangeography or by the occurrence of heart attacks.

"We know that there is no such thing as a 'sudden' heart attack.

"Thousands of victims who drop dead 'suddenly' have been suffering from coronary disease for at least five years. It starts with a progressive decrease in the diameter of one or more of three main coronary arteries which supply blood to the heart. Lesions form at one or more points, causing the diameter of the artery to get smaller and smaller, until finally the heart doesn't receive the oxygenated blood it needs, and then -'

That's it. But too often, this arterial progression does not appear on the electrocardiogram, nor does the victim have any symptoms of coming tragedy.

Resistance, Confusion Attend Busing Issue; Nixon, Richardson Should Clarify Situation

WASHINGTON As the Times also disclosed mounting public schools open for the fall term, busing continues to be both a scare word and a straw man for those who are opposed to or dubious about desegregation. Busing also continues to be the only real hope for achieving substantial desegregation in the North and the larger cities of the South, and it is therefore potentially one of the most important instruments for improving American education.

There are limited grounds for optimism. In the South, busing plans in numerous cities will bring to less than 8 per cent of their total the number of black pupils who will be in all-black schools. Even where George Wallace has been breathing fire and nonsense, the old spirit of massive resistance is reported lacking.

Even in the North, under various forms of legal and political pressure, a nascent attack on so-called de facto segregation can at last be discerned. In Boston, for example, the school board has yielded to the state's threat to withhold $21 million in education funds and has pledged a policy that will eliminate blackmajority schools by 1973.

Red China OKs Continuing Phone Contact With U.S.

New York (UPI) - Communist China, possibly in preparation for President Nixon's forthcoming visit, has agreed to continue indirect telephone communication with the United States.

The indirect link, by way of Tokyo and San Francisco, was established last spring after the U.S. ping pong team was invited to visit mainland China.

Kokusan Denshin Denwa (KDD), the Japanese telephone and telegraph company, said Thursday that Peking had agreed to continue the service in response to a query from the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which is making communications arrangements for Nixon's visit. KDD said the service would only be temporary.

Bird Causes Crash

Clovis, N.M. (UPI) — The Air Force said a large bird slammed through the glass canopy of a F111A swing-wing bomber, causing the plane to crash in west Texas. Two pilots ejected safely.

4 out of 5 standout lawns are fed in the fall. Spread Scotts Turf Builder now.

Surveys by an independent research company prove that most people who fertilize their lawns in the fall wind up with better lawns the following spring. And there's a mighty good reason why. Fall is when grasses can be stimulated to more vigorous root growth, resulting in thicker, greener turf. It's the most important time of the year to use Turf Builder, America's favorite lawn fertilizer. Don't miss out on the best season of the year for lawn improvement. Good morning:

Off with the old and on with the new, are the words that are ringing from the Lincoln Community Playhouse this morning. People are busy taking down scenery and props from the Cabaret Theatre at East Hills. and getting ready for the first production of the season, "Don't Drink The Water", which will begin on Oct. 2.

Shedding an old skin reflects what is happening in the performing arts all around Lincoln. During these pre-fall days most organizations, theatres and groups are priming for the rest of the season.

The Community Concert Series has announced an addition to its 1971-72 season. Members will be glad to hear that their seaason tickets will also entitle them to a performance by the Tucson Arizona Boys Choir which is to be heard in concert on Sunday, March 26, at 3 o'clock.

The University of Nebraska Howell Theatre will open its season with "The Balcony" by Genet on Oct. 29.

Reserved seat memberships for the 1971-72 Lincoln Symphony concert season are sold out, but diehard symphony fans who have not as yet purchased tickets can still avail themselves of general admission season tickets by contacting the Symphony office, 432-5935.

The Nebraska Wesleyan University theatre season will open with "Tartuffe", a French comedy twice banned in Paris. Directed by David M. Clark, the Moliere classic satire will be presented on Sept. 24-26 in the Lucas Loft Theatre on the Wesleyan campus.

Invasion of Miami

Today begins the invasion of Miami, Fla., by the very young set. Young ladies between the ages of five and 12, will be arriving in M i a m i from all over the United States to participate in the "Our Little Miss" pageant, and the La Petite competition.

Among those who, with their mothers, will be in Miami for an exciting week will be five contestants from Nebraska. There will be many eyes on 12 year-old Sheri Reimers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Reimers of Millard, who is Nebraska's "Our Little Miss" who will, of course be competing for th national title and the world title. Then there is Rose Ann Rudnick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rudnick of Tilden. This young lady, was the winner of the talent trophy in the Nebraska pageant, and is the grand talent winner. The 10 year-old is a ballerina.

Competing in the Miami "La Petite" division will be Nebraska's winner, Belinda Geier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Geier of Lincoln, who is six years old.

Attending the pageant as spectators, but not as contestants will be the first runner-up in the La Petite class, Rebecca Knapple, the five year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Knapple of Lexington. Also on hand will be Nebraska's La Petite second runner-up, Linda Paulsen who is six years old and who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Paulsen of Lincoln.

The pageant opens today and will continue through Sept. 9.

Included along the VIP's during the competition will be Mrs. Eldene Pershing of Lincoln, state director for Nebraska's "Our Little Miss" pageant. Mrs. Pershing will be seated with the officials at each of the pageant performances.

Conference

Patricia Reilly Hitt, assistant secretary for Community and Field Services of the Department of Health Education and Welfare, will be the keynote speaker at the annual board of directors meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs which will be held in Atlanta, Ga., from Sunday, Sept. 12, through Thursday, Sept. 16.

The conference's agenda includes a presentation of program plans by the national executive committee and department and division chairmen.

Mrs. Earle A. Brown of Washington, D.C., is president of the General Federation, and will address the delegates, as well as other well-known political and business representatives.

A special trip to the Tallulah Falls (Ga.) School will be made during the four day meeting. The school is owned and maintained by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Checks, plaids and stripes in colors no one but Donald Davies would think of combining. Moreover, these shirtdresses were all created on the grounds of Mr. Davies' romantic Dublin, in woolens that are nearly as light as air and hand washable besides. But the main pleasure comes in the wearing. They feel so easy on. Come in and see our collection, sizes 8 to 16, $66. Sportswear, Street Floor.

A special trip to the Tallulah Falls (Ga.) School will be made during the four day meeting. The school is owned and maintained by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Checks, plaids and stripes in colors no one but Donald Davies would think of combining. Moreover, these shirtdresses were all created on the grounds of Mr. Davies' romantic Dublin, in woolens that are nearly as light as air and hand washable besides. But the main pleasure comes in the wearing. They feel so easy on. Come in and see our collection, sizes 8 to 16, $66. Sportswear, Street Floor.

Equine enthusiasts who are planning to attend the Nebraska State Fair this year will find that they have a special treat in store for them At 7:30 o'clock on Friday evening, Sept. 3. the members of the Arabian Horse Association of Nebraska (AHAN) will present an exhibition at the State Fair coliseum featuring their favorite breed of horse a breed whose popularity has grown by leaps and bounds during the past several years

Those attending the exhibition - for which, incidentally, there will be no admission charge - will see first-hand just how versatile the Arabian horse is. AHAN members will put their mounts through their paces in a variety of simulated horse show "classes." Included among the events to be demonstrated will be both English and Western pleasure riding: stock horse competition (which emphasizes the horse's agility and potential ability to work with cattle); and harness, and halter classes. Probably the most colorful event will be the costume class, in which the horses and riders will be arrayed in native Arabian finery.

Also featured at the exhibition will be Johnny Berguson of Covington, Pa. and his threequarters Arab mount,

AT COWNIE-MAGEES

'Nostalgia' is the word for clothing and accessories this season - and we will see the return of the classic look and the dressed-up look, and therefore the return of furs, gloves, hats, and many other too-forgotten accessories that make a woman look and feel more feminine.

We mentioned furs and they really have returned and look better than ever. Cownie Furs at Magees is still awaiting the arrival of most of its furs which will be featured in a special showing within the next few weeks. Those furs will include the fun furs - chubby coats, curly lambs, long and short rabbits, muskrats, foxes, and raccoons.

But the furs that are already on display are certainly stunning. The mink colors are ranch and tourmaline, the nearly white variety. For crisp autumn days we recommend Autumn Haze, a light brown.

Those luscious colors are used in the fingertip jacket which is particularly popular this season. The style features a wide collar and lapels and beautifully jeweled buttons.

Another particularly attractive style is the cape which has been rejuvenated with a scalloped hemline, gold buttons, and the double-breasted motif.

French rabbit was used to advantage in the full-length, double-breasted coat that was hooded and belted.

AT MILLER AND PAINE

Along with the return of the blazer, we have found the resurrection of the ascot - and

Miller and Paine has a wide selection of stylish ascots. They come in a wide assortment of patterns, colors, and combinations of colors.

Gloves are definitely 'in' after a too-long absence - now that the classic look has become so popular. The most recent addition to the glove world is the Cosmetic Glove or the Isotoner from Aris' Hands Beautiful line.

The Isotoners, made of woven spandex, massage the hands as you wear them and, since, they increase the circulation, they are perfect for arthritics as well as any woman who wants to keep her, hands lovely - and what woman doesn't?

One size fits all, and there are two very smart styles of the Cosmetic Gloves.

The first style has a scalloped eyelet accent at the base, whether it be wristlength, medium length, or the mid-armlength. This particular styles comes in the basic colors of black, brown, navy, white, bone, camel, and cocoa.

Another style is the driving glove that looks stunning outside of the car as well. The short gloves have leather accents in contrasting colors. One of our favorites was of cocoa brown spandex with off-white leather stripes for accent. We also recommend the navy glove with red leather.

By the way, women are now preferring to have their wrists covered and therefore are leaning more toward the longer two-button length glove.

AT HOVLAND-SWANSON

We visited the two milinery departments located on the first and second floors. The hat bar on the first floor has many popular moderately priced hats for sport and dress

Crocheted hats are again popular this year. Our eye couldn't help but land on some tri-colored small woven, wool crocheted caps. Available in two styles, a cuffed cloche or bell cloche, the tri-colors will either match a solid color or blend with a plaid.

The great looks in fake furs are carried to the top of your head in 'Sherpa' caps and cloches. This fake fur is made to look like lambs wool in white, and can be coordinated with matching shoulder handbags.

Suede is another new fabric that is being shown in clothing, purses and now, hats of all shapes and sizes. One of our favorites was a suede cloche with a flat suede flower to create interest on the side of the hat.

On the second floor at Hovland's we found the better hats department. Silver fox fur hats are making a comeback this year in the great wraparounds. Fox is even being dyed to resemble sable, and one of the featured hats in this department is a beret in this fur.

A profile beret of black llama mink is trimmed in mink tails, and offers a handbag to match.

Every woman becomes more or less dependant on her handbag, and this year handbags will be a pleasure to carry. Fashion news dictates that the newest looks will be in crushed patent, suede and hard leather. The shoulder bag is holding its own and by and large, the bags are moving up in size.

A walking suit will be smartly accessorized by an oblong shaped bag in crushed leather. The long envelope flap is accented at the top by a gold metal ring looped across the width of the purse. A shoulder strap finishes the look.

Bulky hard leather purses are often tooled or stitched. Most of these purses have wide shoulder straps and an envelope type flap.

Suede and soft leathers in large pouch purses are adding art to everyday dress. In a combination of colors, patches of the suede or leather are sewn to fashion a picture on the purse.

The accordian style purse is also popular this year, and with its many pockets, a woman may find it easier to organize her purse belongings.

The English text of the agreement refers to "transit traffic" concerning access through East Germany to and from West Berlin." The West Germans want this translated as "through traffic." The Communist side wants simply "transit." The implications are legalistic in German: "Through traffic" would mean within a single country. "Transit" would mean from one political entity, West Berlin, through another, East Germany.

Missouri Defense Front-Liners Solid, But Depth May Be Problem

Columbia, Mo. - The strength of Missouri football teams in past years when Al Onofrio was in charge of the defensive line was the Tigers' defense.

Nothing has changed in that regard as Missouri heads into its 1971 campaign, except that the builder of those rugged Tiger defensive lines is now the head coach here, succeeding

"We are experienced on defense," Onofrio pointed out to Big Eight Skywriters, making their last stop of an eight-day, 2,200-mile tour. "We have 10 seniors and only one sophomore starter on defense.

"And that senior group is made up of players, who have proven themselves to be big play players.

"We expect them to play good football and to improve game-by-game. They will be good football players and will improve if we don't run into injury problems with them."

But while the Tigers appear to be solid in its front-liners on defense, the new head coach points out that depth is a problem.

Depth Only At Linebacker

"If anyone among our defensive starter gets hurt, we'll be playing with inexperienced people except at linebacker," Onofrio adds

"And injuries can change things greatly. For instance, if you have to go with a sophomore or someone without experience in the defensive secondary, teams are going to pick on that man and you can be in trouble."

Onofrio calls his top two linebackers, Sam Britts and

Mike McKee, "two of the best we've had as a pair, not individually, but as a pair."

Behind those two, Onofrio has junior lettermen in Tom Kellett and Roger Yanko. The only sophomore figuring to start on defense is guard Larry Frost, a 6-3, 205-pounder

The defensive backfield is made up of an all-senior cast, Pete Buha at safety and Lorenzo Brinkley and Henry Stuckey

"Defensively, we're going to have much the same look that we've had in the past (under Devine)," Onofrio says, "Because we are going to be playing the same way."

Inexperience On Offense

In contrast to an experienced defensive platoon, the offense is going to be green for the most part.

"We have only three or four seniors on offense, who figure to be starters," Onofrio says, speaking of receiver John Henley, tackle Mickey Kephart and quarterbacks Mike Farmer and Chuck Roper.

"The rest of our players on offense are either sophomores or juniors with little or no game experience," the Tiger coach points out. "Some of them have good ability, but we lack the big play players that we have on defense."

One, who he hopes will develop into that big play player category, is slotback Mike Fink, who he says "has the speed and ability to become a big play player.

"Tailback Jack Bastable has fine ability, but he doesn't have great speed. He could develop into a big play player. In fact, we might have to say he is a big play player."

Onofrio figures one of his top offensive linemen will be center Scott Sodergren, a junior letterman, who has moved into the spot vacated by Bob Wilson. "Wilson last year was one of the best centers we've had," Onofrio says, "But we're very high on Sodergren."

Johndrow No. 2.

While Farmer and Roper shared quarterbacking duties last season, neither is listed in the top two on the depth chart with John Venturi running No. 1 and sophomore Ed

This, Onofrio explains, is "because Farmer and Roper both are coming back after surgery and we want to have four quarterbacks ready to play and who fully understand our offense.

"Anytime you have a quarterback, who likes to throw (Roper) and he has had shoulder surgery, you've got to be apprehensive. And anytime you have a quarterback, who likes to run and throw (Farmer) and has had knee surgery, you've got to be a bit apprehensive about him."

Apparently Recovered

However, Onofrio also notes that a recent Missouri scrimmage showed both had "recovered fully, both physically and mentally, from the surgery."

Despite having four quarterbacks in the picture at present, Onofrio stresses that he does not plan to "play musical

"When we decide on one, he'll play until he is hurt or is not moving the team. We're not trying to copy Nebraska, but we'd like to be able to do it the way they do.

When we played them last year, Jerry Tagge started and for three quarters, it was 7-7. Then Van Brownson came in and they beat us. And I believe he started the next game for them."

While the Missouri defense will have the same look as in the past, Onofrio says the offense may be a bit different. 'We'll have a limited number of plays, but we plan to run them from several formations," he says, "And that may give us a little bit different look than in the past."

The Missouri coach believes "any team in the Big Eight can be a contender, but none of us can say how many we're going to win or lose because winning or losing depends on the strength of the opponent. But as long as you have players with a good attitude, who have some ability, you're not afraid to face the season, but that doesn't tell you how many you're going to win or lose."

After another sluggish practice session Thursday by his Husker football squad, Nebraska head coach Bob Devaney plans to take a minor step today to try to put an end to a rash of less than satisfactory workouts.

When an observer noted that Thursday's session was not one of the better ones the Huskers have had, Devaney agreed and added, "We've had a few in that

"Right now, we're attributing it to tiredness, but if it doesn't improve, we're going to have to find a new excuse.

After viewing films of the Wednesday contact session, the Husker offensive coaches felt tht pass protection was improved, but Devaney noted that one reason for that could be that "We're not putting as much of a rush on as we have in the

Frazier Set

Philadelphia (P) — World heavyweight champion Joe Frazier will fight Canada's George Chuvalo in Montreal in October or November, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported in its editions today.

The paper said it has learned that the fighters have not signed for the bout to be held in The Forum, but that negotiations between Montreal boxing promoter Regis Levesque and the two camps is under way in the Quebec city.

The bout, the paper said, would be scheduled for 15 rounds, with Frazier's world championship belt on the line. Frazier's Manager Yank Durham said he is asking a guarantee of $150,000 against 45 per cent of the gate and ancillaries, but he admitted, 'We'll settle for $100,000," the Inquirer said

Frazier used the durable Toronto heavyweight as a stepping-stone to the World Boxing Association title when he stopped Chuvalo on a fourth-round technical knockout in Madison Square Garden on July 19,

Bills Wilson Says No To NY Move

Buffalo, N.Y. (2) - Ralph C. Wilson J., owner of the Buffalo Bills, temporarily spiked rumors Thursday that he might announce plans to transfer this club to New York City by saying he would resume negotiations State Fair Stock Car Racing Friday morning with Erie County officials.

The negotiations concern leasing a proposed 65,000-80,000seat football stadium the county is considering building.

Wilson called off a news conference scheduled for Thursday night in which he had declined to disclose the subject matter. An aide said later, however, that Wilson was willing to return to the negotiating table from which he walked out after a 11/2 hour session Thursday.

There had been widespread reports that Bills' officials had talked with Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York and that Wilson was interested in moving his National Football League to New York to an Indianal By District Court Judge team to New York to replace the New Jersey-bound Giants.

Missouri Defense Front-Liners Solid, But Depth May Be Problem

Columbia, Mo. — The strength of Missouri football teams in past years when Al Onofrio was in charge of the defensive line was the Tigers' defense.

Nothing has changed in that regard as Missouri heads into its 1971 campaign, except that the builder of those rugged Tiger defensive lines is now the head coach here, succeeding

"We are experienced on defense," Onofrio pointed out to Big Eight Skywriters, making their last stop of an eight-day, 2,200-mile tour. "We have 10 seniors and only one sophomore starter on defense.

"And that senior group is made up of players, who have proven themselves to be big play players.

"We expect them to play good football and to improve game-by-game. They will be good football players and will improve if we don't run into injury problems with them."

But while the Tigers appear to be solid in its front-liners on defense, the new head coach points out that depth is a problem.

Depth Only At Linebacker

"If anyone among our defensive starter gets hurt, we'll be playing with inexperienced people except at linebacker," Onofrio adds.

"And injuries can change things greatly. For instance, if you have to go with a sophomore or someone without experience in the defensive secondary, teams are going to pick on that man and you can be in trouble."

Onofrio calls his top two linebackers, Sam Britts and

Kansas City, Mo. - Defending national and Big Eight champion Nebraska, as expected, was tabbed by Big Eight Skywriters, who completed their eight-day, 2,200mile tour of all conference schools here, to repeat as league champions.

But the margin was not as big as one might expect and certainly not as big as Husker fans might have hoped.

Not Good

By HAL BROWN Star Sports Editor

After another sluggish practice session Thursday by his Husker football squad, Nebraska head coach Bob Devaney plans to take a minor step today to try to put an end to a rash of less than satisfactory workouts.

When an observer noted that Thursday's session was not one of the better ones the Huskers have had, Devaney agreed and added, "We've had a few in that

The Husker coach said today's workout would be shortened by one-half hour to an hour and a

"We'll just work them in shorts, also," he added, "And hope the adrenalin will start flowing again for Saturday's scrimmage." That scrimmage, Devaney pointed out, would be closed to the public, the last scrimmage before next week's opener with After viewing films of the Wednesday contact session, the Husker offensive coaches felt tht pass protection was improved, but Devaney noted that one reason for that could be that "We're not putting as much of a rush on as we have in the past."

The coaching staff also continued their search for a placekicker to at least partially fill the void left by the graduation of Paul Rogers, who handled those chores the past three

"At the present time, Darryl White and Rich Sanger appear to be the leading candidates," Devaney said.

Walline and Dennis Thorell.

Mike McKee, "two of the best we've had as a pair, not individually, but as a pair."

Behind those two, Onofrio has junior lettermen in Tom Kellett and Roger Yanko. The only sophomore figuring to start on defense is guard Larry Frost, a 6-3, 205-pounder

The defensive backfield is made up of an all-senior cast, Pete Buha at safety and Lorenzo Brinkley and Henry Stuckey

"Defensively, we're going to have much the same look that we've had in the past (under Devine)," Onofrio says, "Because we are going to be playing the same way."

Inexperience On Offense

In contrast to an experienced defensive platoon, the offense is going to be green for the most part.

"We have only three or four seniors on offense, who figure to be starters," Onofrio says, speaking of receiver John Henley, tackle Mickey Kephart and quarterbacks Mike Farmer and Chuck Roper.

"The rest of our players on offense are either sophomores or juniors with little or no game experience," the Tiger coach points out. "Some of them have good ability, but we lack the big play players that we have on defense.'

One, who he hopes will develop into that big play player category, is slotback Mike Fink, who he says "has the speed and ability to become a big play player.

"Tailback Jack Bastable has fine ability, but he doesn't

Onofrio figures one of his top offensive linemen will be center Scott Sodergren, a junior letterman, who has moved into the spot vacated by Bob Wilson. "Wilson last year was one of the best centers we've had," Onofrio says, "But we're very high on Sodergren."

While Farmer and Roper shared quarterbacking duties last season, neither is listed in the top two on the depth chart with John Venturi running No. 1 and sophomore Ed Johndrow No. 2.

This, Onofrio explains, is "because Farmer and Roper both are coming back after surgery and we want to have four quarterbacks ready to play and who fully understand

BREWERS SLIP

Apparently Recovered

However, Onofrio also notes that a recent Missouri scrimmage showed both had "recovered fully, both physically and mentally, from the surgery."

Despite having four quarterbacks in the picture at present, Onofrio stresses that he does not plan to "play musical chairs with them.

"When we decide on one, he'll play until he is hurt or is not moving the team. We're not trying to copy Nebraska, but we'd like to be able to do it the way they do. "When we played them last year, Jerry Tagge started and for three quarters, it was 7-7. Then Van Brownson came in and they beat us. And I believe he started the next game for them."

While the Missouri defense will have the same look as in the past, Onofrio says the offense may be a bit different. "We'll have a limited number of plays, but we plan to run them from several formations," he says, "And that may give us a little bit different look than in the past."

The Missouri coach believes "any team in the Big Eight can be a contender, but none of us can say how many we're going to win or lose because winning or losing depends on the strength of the opponent. But as long as you have players with a good attitude, who have some ability, you're not afraid to face the season, but that doesn't tell you how many you're going to win or lose."

Frazier Set

Philadelphia (A) — World heavyweight champion Joe Frazier will fight Canada's George Chuvalo in Montreal in October or November, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported in its editions today.

The paper said it has learned that the fighters have not signed for the bout to be held in The Forum, but that negotiations between Montreal boxing pro-moter Regis Levesque and the two camps is under way in the Quebec city.

The bout, the paper said, would be scheduled for 15 rounds, with Frazier's world championship belt on the line. Frazier's Manager Yank Durham said he is asking a guarantee of $150,000 against 45 per cent of the gate and an-cillaries, but he admitted, 'We'll settle for $100,000," the Inquirer said.

Frazier used the durable Toronto heavyweight as a stepping-stone to the World Boxing Association title when he stopped Chuvalo on a fourth-round technical knockout in Madison Square Garden on July 19.

Bills Wilson Says No To NY Move

Buffalo, N.Y. (A) - Ralph C. Wilson J., owner of the Buffalo Bills, temporarily spiked rumors Thursday that he might announce plans to transfer this club to New York City by saying he would resume negotiations Friday morning with Erie County officials.

The negotiations concern leasing a proposed 65,000-80,000seat football stadium the county is considering building.

Wilson called off a news conference scheduled for Thursday night in which he had declined to disclose the subject matter. An aide said later, however, that Wilson was willing to return to the negotiating table from which he walked out after a 11/2 hour session Thursday.

There had been widespread reports that Bills' officials had talked with Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York and that team to New York to replace the New Jersey-bound Giants.

"We've started off this year with great enthusiasm," coach Frank Solich says. "I've been very impressed with the attitude of the squad." But Solich has just eight lettermen back from the title team. "We could be every bit as good as last year," the Knights' head man says, "but it will depend on two things. First of all, the new kids will have to come through. They have indicated in pre-season practice that they might. "Secondly, we'll have to stay away from injuries, because we don't have much depth," he Solich admits that enthusiasm prior to the start of the actual campaign can be deceiving. "We're out there hollering and patting each other on the back right now," he says, "but the important thing will be how that attitude holds up when they fall behind in a game for the first time." The ex-Nebraska fullback says you never know about a team's true character until adversity strikes. "If a club can stick together, keep up that enthusiasm and battle back under those conditions, then they can go a long way," he reasons.

Solich will especially miss quarterback Don Osvog, who led the South to a Shrine Bowl win this summer, and starting Shrine Bowl center Brad Eg-

"Egger played first string for us for three years," Solich remembers. "Maybe we were guilty in not having somebody playing enough to be ready to step in and take over this year. But John Bozarth, who was a reserve guard last year, is looking very good at center."

Solich has been impressed with others who appear ready to step in for front line duty. We've had some pleasant surprises," he says. "But even though they've looked good in pre-season practice, they are still going to be in here playing without any real varsity experience. Our success will depend on them coming through." Tom Partridge has the inside track at the present time to replace Osvog at quarterback. "He runs the option well and is doing a good job on his faking,"

"We've been working mostly on our running game," the Southeast grid boss reveals. "We have a lot of experience in the backfield, and Egbert Thompson and Mark Michel are both real breakaway threats. We'll be running the ball a lot."

Solich says the defense needs more work before Southeast's opening game. "The first two days, when we weren't allowed in pads, we spent our time getting the offense set," he remembers. "We then went ahead and finished getting most of the plays refined. As a result our defensive play is just now starting to catch up with the offense. "But," he adds, "I can't really say that I'm dissatisfied with any phase of our game."

If he were to schedule a Windle at split end.

It is Indian summer around here. Smoke blue evenings. The water is like a morror. The seagulls are diving for fish. Hunting season is every day.

A seagull is a glider. When he sees a fish, he closes his wings and—plop! Into the water headfirst. Surface with dinner.

At home his seagull wife says: 'I suppose you staved smashed all the time with those rowdy friends of yours. What did it cost this time?'

Police Arrest Porno Sellers In New York

New York (UPI) - Police arrested seven booksellers Thursday in a continuing crackdown on pornography in Times Square, then went back and arrested the clerks who had reopened two of the stores. "These guys better learn we mean business," a police official said.

"If they think we're kidding they're going to find out. We have the warrants and we'll lock them up and close them down as fast as they reopen," he said. The seven booksellers allegedly sold pornographic said the books were brought before several criminal court judges who declared them obscene. Police then obtained search warrants and raided the bookstores, arresting the dealers on charges of promoting obscenity.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune Count the letters in your first name, if the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper lett hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you. Distributed by King Features Inc., Registered U.S. Patent Office
